Spiritualizing Reality

By Carole Devine

These monthly missives replaced a quarterly time interval because of the important Neptune/Jupiter/Saturn T-square (and a grand square with the participation of faster planets from time to time) that is defining our current period of evolution. After a short break, in which Saturn and Jupiter retrograded out of range, they are now coming back into the T-square formation, so we can expect the drama to continue from now through early November. In November Jupiter moves into Sagittarius, and the pattern will be broken.

So far, we have talked about how Saturn opposing Neptune can shatter our illusions—Saturn representing so-called “reality” and Neptune our illusions or fantasies. But they act on each other. Just as Saturn is influencing Neptune by putting up boundaries on how far our illusions will go (like global warming), so, too, is Neptune influencing Saturn and dissolving our concept of what “reality” is.

Did you know that after Galileo announced that the earth was orbiting the sun and was not flat nor the center of the universe, it took an entire century for it to become commonly accepted? People are very slow to wake up.

Early in the last century from 1905 until 1926 scientists were being challenged by the weird way sub-atomic particles behaved. By 1926, they named this new branch of physics “Quantum Mechanics,” and since then Newtonian physics has not been compatible with it. Then in 1979 Gary Zukav published his famous and extremely important work, The Dancing Wu Li Masters, which explained the new physics in simple terms; it opened up a plethora of possibilities for interpreting our reality. In 2002, Lynne McTaggart published The Field in which she shows us that all consciousness is connected, and, like Zukav, that matter is the result of consciousness; therefore, we make our own reality with our minds and emotions—in short, our core beliefs. After a century, the discoveries of 1905 are finally being accepted and understood. Our famous motivational gurus, Deepok Chopra and Wayne Dyer, talk about it all the time!

During the few years that Neptune has been opposing Saturn, we have also witnessed the phenomenon of the documentary movie getting awards as never before. Witness the popularity of March of the Penguins, What the Bleep Do I Know?, Fahrenheit 911, An Inconvenient Truth and especially The Secret—all aired during or in the gestation period before this opposition. Some of them are awakening us to responsibilities (Saturn), such as global warming, but the “bleep” movie and The Secret are about creating our reality. Through the mechanism of our solar system’s “clock,” when it is time to grow into a higher consciousness, we are led through various channels, mass media included, to accept new insightful truths and become accustomed to them.

About particles

Now, you may ask (unless you have read those books just mentioned or others similar) just how does consciousness create matter? First, no one has seen a sub-atomic particle, it is so small, yet it is the stuff of atoms, and atoms make up matter. Therefore, sub-atomic particles compose everything into infinity. It was discovered early in the 20th century, that these particles seem to be waves of energy rather than substantial matter, but their properties behave like both in various conditions. Read The Dancing Wu Li Masters for an explanation of this.

The most important thing is that these waves of energy cannot be measured or observed without changing them. They are potential of various possibilities until an observer influences them. At that point of influence (a thought), all potential stops, a decision is made and it “happens”—whatever that decision was. That is, the particle is influenced to make a choice about what it will become or what it will do next.

Furthermore, sub-atomic particles influence other particles instantly no matter how far apart they are—even light years away. (I believe it is this that holds the key to how our cosmic clock—Astrology—works.) They do not operate under Newtonian laws of time and space, as far as we know. Therefore, the instant you make a decision about what you believe to be your “truth,” sub-atomic particles rush to create it for you. Do you believe you are poor, sick, rich, lonely, etc.? It will continue as long as you create it with your belief.

Late in the 20th century after decades of frustration trying to unify quantum mechanics with the theory of relativity and the problem of gravity—i.e. trying to unify quantum physics with Newtonian physics, string theory developed as a possible solution. It is not the ultimate answer, but one website (superstringtheory.com) said this about it:

“We still don’t know what the fundamental theory behind string theory is, but judging from all of these relationships, it must be a very interesting and rich theory, one where distance scales, coupling strengths and even the number of dimensions in spacetime are not fixed concepts but fluid entities that shift with our point of view.”

I also believe that this is the mechanism of prayer. If you believe a prayer will be answered positively to your satisfaction, it will. If you do not believe it is possible in your heart, it is also answered; “it is not possible” is the answer. I also believe this is a self-perpetuating law that is from a higher intelligence. Quantum physics goes a long way to prove there is a God. If God is this field of energy that is in and around us all at once, connecting us all—making us one, and it responds to our belief, then the beliefs of all religions find a common meeting ground and make sense.

Back to Neptune, Saturn and Jupiter

At this time in our evolution, I believe we are being given the opportunity to become aware of the spiritual laws behind our perceived reality. That brings us to Jupiter, which represents society, judgment, philosophy, wisdom and higher education—in fact, religion, as well.

Jupiter and Saturn, as a pair, represent our position in society and our perception of our personal limitation—or lack of it. If you want to see how a person views his place in society and his potential for so-called “success” as society sees it, look to these two in the natal chart. Jupiter is commonly, in astrological parlance, called “expansion” and Saturn “contraction.” They are theoretical opposites.

Our charts show what beliefs we are born with concerning our perceived reality about ourselves. It is, of course, a construct of what we have evolved into from past lives. (...and past lives is another whole quantum question!) Our line of least resistance is to continue on that path. We even defend it and sometimes get stuck there. It depends on the strength we allow our ego to build. If Jupiter is strongly and positively placed, the person is confident of his or her place in society and expects things to go well and successfully. Therefore, since belief is behind reality, it will go well for that person—as long as the perception lasts. If Saturn is stronger and not well-supported, the opposite is true. It isn't necessarily permanent—just the line of least resistance. By changing the belief, the whole life can change! The Jupiter-influenced person can even become less confident and have a negative change.

Right now, the whole world is being influenced by a contradiction: Jupiter is square Saturn, meaning that it is a challenge to integrate the two. Judgment about what is real and is not is difficult; which philosophy is correct is hard to determine. Or to put it another way, our judgment about what philosophy is best is “iffy.” (i. e. Should we, for instance, have imposed democracy on a whole country without their requesting it?) Jupiter is square Neptune (or soon will be) meaning that it is confusing to know what or whom to believe. Deception is everywhere and hard to define or recognize. Usually, when Jupiter is stressfully related to Neptune, there are excesses that come from deception that are hard to detect. (Neptune rules oil...hint, hint)

But, the most important is Saturn opposing Neptune. The symbol for Saturn is a cross over a crescent. The crescent represents spirit, and the cross (matter) on top of it represents the spirit immersed in matter—or the cross our spirit carries in this lifetime in matter. If all a person understands about his or her chart, the meaning of Saturn would give him information more valuable than anything else except maybe the Nodes.

The symbol for Neptune is the crescent on its side like a cup raised above the cross in an open “receiving” position (the trident). Neptune is one of the outer planets, taking fourteen years to go through a sign. Saturn takes two and a half years. The slower a planet is, the more it influences any faster planet, so logically, it is not Saturn influencing Neptune, but the reverse. We are “receiving” spiritual guidance to aid the “cross” we are carrying.

Neptune has also been called the “universal solvent” since it erases or dissolves what it influences. We are having a slow erosion of our concepts of concrete reality on many fronts and in many ways depending on each individual's need and personal development. It is always multidimensional. These are exciting times since we have an opportunity to grow beyond what we thought we were and become more of what we can be!

What is the Global Message?

This is not only a personal influence, but it has universal significance, as well. Going back to Biblical teaching, we have been taught that Jesus advocated non-violence (“if a man takes your shirt, give him your coat, as well” – to translate into current garment terms. “Turn the other cheek.”). Much has been accomplished through non-violence as Martin Luther King, Jr. and Gandhi demonstrated. Yet, someone like Pat Robertson actually advises assassinating a leader in another country. A “Christian” president invades another country taking countless lives in the process, and does it under false pretenses. Clearly, our religious and moral teachings have been modified somewhat!

What can one person do?

Years ago I used to laugh at those global prayer vigils thinking they were simplistic and useless. That was before I knew the physics behind it. The truth is that we are all connected at a consciousness level, and we do influence each other. On a quantum level we have caused everything in the world by our individual (which makes the collective) thoughts, feelings and behavior. That is why we were admonished to love one another—everyone, without exception. It is by our feelings and thoughts that war is possible. We also attract what happens to us in some way, on some level.

It isn't necessary to analyze it all. It is only necessary to focus our thought and feelings on peace and harmony—collectively. Instead of “fighting against” something, try focusing “for” something that is positive. When we “push against,” we actually create more of the same thing because it is compatible energy.

More of this concept can be seen in the movie, The Secret, which can be purchased from www.tut.com in their online store.

“Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that. Hate multiplies hate, violence multiplies violence, and toughness multiplies toughness in a descending spiral of destruction....The chain reaction of evil--hate begetting hate, wars producing more wars--must be broken, or we shall be plunged into the dark abyss of annihilation.”

~ Martin Luther King, Jr., Strength to Love, 1963.
